In 1978, "WKRP in Cincinnati," a new TV sitcom, featured an entertaining cast working at a struggling radio station in the Queen City. It received 10 Emmy nominations and after being syndicated, enjoyed great success.

At the National Voice of America Museum of Broadcasting in West Chester, a new exhibit features an authentic experience recreating the sounds, reach and fun of radio broadcasting, and the legacies of Cincinnati radio legends.

Local radio personalities became friends with their loyal listeners, as they regularly tuned in to hear their favorite host, music or show. This 1960s-70s era radio room allows visitors to sit at the controls and feel what it was like to spin tunes. Or stand behind the Big Microphone broadcasting news to thousands. Here's your chance to recreate the beloved WKRP Thanksgiving episode – and explain to radios fans why "Turkeys can't fly!"

The Museum is open on weekends from Noon to 4:00 p.m. Guided tours at 12:30, 2:00 and 3:00. Amateur Radio presentations at 1:30, 2:45 and 3:30 p.m. <https://voamuseum.org> (513) 777-0027
